Atlanta Botanical Garden - Expansion

Pinus wallichiana

Himalayan pine, Bhutan pine, Himalayan white pine

Also known as: Pinus griffithii | Family: Pinaceae

Rockery: 1 TOTAL 1

Not available

PLANTING NOTES

Siting
Not stated

Soil prep
Not stated

Depth & spacing
Not stated

Best planting season
Not stated

Establishment
Plant in full sun on well-drained acid soil. Shelter from strong cold winds. No regular pruning required; remove competing leaders if needed. net

HEALTH

Health
Less susceptible to white pine blister rust than many North American five-needled pines. Watch for pine adelgid, aphids, honey fungus, and tree rusts. Severe winter winds may cause needle browning. net; Oregon State Landscape Plants

Symptoms
None stated